Display like KR Market: a guide for small shops

for any shop with a counter, a shelf or a window

The idea. KR Market sellers stack fruit into pyramids. A pyramid does three jobs: from far away it looks like plenty, up close every fruit faces you, and you pick your own, so the choice feels like yours. Your shop can borrow all three.

1. Pick one "pyramid" product

- Choose your best seller or the item with the best margin. That is what goes up front.

2. Put it where people see it from the door

- Stand outside your shop. What do you see first? That spot is your pyramid spot.
- Eye level beats floor level. The right side of the entrance is a common choice; check where people in your shop actually look.

3. Keep it full

- A half empty shelf reads as leftovers. Refill before it drops below about two-thirds, or move stock to a smaller tray so it looks full.

4. Make every item face the customer

- Labels forward, best side out, same direction. A neat row looks cared for.

5. Let people touch and choose

- If it is safe, let customers pick from the display themselves. Picking your own makes the purchase feel like your decision.

6. Show the price on the pile

- Like the KR Market cards: a big, readable price stuck right into the display.

7. Test for 2 weeks

- Move one product into the pyramid spot. Count how many you sell before and after. Keep it if it helps.

Practical steps, not guaranteed results. Try one change at a time and measure it.
