AHEAD WITH KK

Put your best reason at the top: the food court rule for any business with more than one thing to sell, online or offline

What I saw. The mall directory: jewellery at the bottom, fashion, sports, kids and home in the middle, cinema on 3, food court on 4. To eat, you ride past 3 floors of shops. My take: food and films are why most people come, so they go at the top.

☐ 1. Name your food court

- What do people already come to you for? Your bestseller, your free tool, your famous dish, your service everyone asks about.

☐ 2. Name your next best thing

- The product or service you wish more people bought.

☐ 3. Put #2 on the path to #1

- Shop: next best thing along the walk to the bestseller.
- Website: on the page people visit most, show your next best thing right before the thing they came for.
- WhatsApp: when someone asks for your bestseller, reply with it and one line about the next best thing.

☐ 4. Make the reward worth the walk

- The mall's food court is good enough that people don't mind the ride. Your bestseller has to stay great, or the path just annoys people.

☐ 5. Measure the add-on

- How many customers buy #2 along with #1? Check before and after for 2 weeks.

Practical steps, not guaranteed results.